Message from the President

Clontarf Cricket Club are proud to host its first Benson & Hedges competition game.

I am delighted to welcome Gloucestershire back to Castle Avenue after a gap of 15 years. They last played here in a Nat West trophy game in 1981. In particular, I welcome A.J. (Tony) Wright who celebrates his benefit year this year.

The Irish team under National Coach Mick Hendrick and Captain Alan Lewis, have a significant programme of games throughout the summer which we all hope will culminate in a successful ICC tournament in Malaysia next March.

To stage today's game, especially as it occurs so early in the season, requires a lot of hard work by many – I would like to single out our new groundsman Karl McDermott who has put in a tremendous effort to prepare the playing facilities despite some terrible weather. Karl follows in the footsteps of the legendary Podge Hughes who we owe a great debt of gratitude for creating the wonderful ground we have today.

I ask you, the readers, to support our sponsors and advertisers wherever possible. We appreciate their support and I am sure they would appreciate yours.

My thanks to the small group who put this publication together, namely Deryck Vincent, Enda MacDermot, Roger McGreal and Garry Cullen.

Finally, it is my wish that the sun will shine today and the we will be entertained to a keen contest.

Tom Prior, President

GLoucestershire County Cricket Club

1996 Beneficiary

A.J. Wright

Tony Wright is one of the longest serving players on the staff of today's visitors and it is fitting that he should have been granted a benefit in 1996.

Born in Stevenage, Hertfordshire in 1962, Tony made his debut for the county in 1982 and his county cap followed in 1987. His obvious leadership talents came to the fore in this period and this was recognised by his elevation to vice-captain in 1989. This was to prove a brief appointment as he was promoted to captain the following year and led the county with distinction until 1993.

Tony's highest first class score is 193, made against Nottinghamshire and ominously for the home side he has a top score of 97 in the Benson and Hedges Trophy.

His statistics are evidence of a highly successful career and we wish him well in his benefit year.

When Gloucestershire visited Clontarf in 1981 to play against Ireland in the Nat West Trophy it was a sobering day for the home team, as the Sean Pender reported for The Irish Times.

Lost Souls

To have been routed for 75 - and even many of these runs came from edged strokes - was damning indictment of the fibre and determination of the Irish batsman. Facing arguably the most benign of bowling attacks in county cricket today, without Mike Proctor into the bargain the home players on a slow wicket that admittedly took a little spin late in the day shaped like lost souls.

Only Ivan Anderson at the wicket 102 mins for 26 and Jack Short struggling for 69 mins over 14 got into double figures. After the opening assault had been seen off for the loss of Stephen Warke and Chris Harte, both leg before, spinners Garveney and Childs shattered the Irish innings, Graveney finishing off with 5 for 11 in 59 deliveries.

If there was scarcely a single shaft to lighten the batting gloom, Irelands performance in the field deservedly earned warm appreciation from Gloucestershire. To some very good bowling by Corlett, Torrens, Halliday (though he was not at his very best) and Anderson everyone responded with tremendous verve. At all times the chasing and fielding was of a very high order.

I have always had the highest regard for the dedicated effort Corlett puts into his play. On Saturday, he surpassed even his own lofty standards. By catching Chris Broad off his own bowling for 8, he sent Irish hopes soaring. He followed up spectacularly by trapping the great Zaheer Abbas leg before 16 runs later and then at the end of the innings nipped in the bud a threatened onslaught by Alan Wilkins with a good old fashioned yorker. On top of that he fielded like a demon.

At 25 for 3 a major break through seemed possible even probable. But clearly mindful of the mauling his bowlers received at the tailend of the Middlesex innings, Brendan O'Brien withdrew both Corlett and Torrens from the attack in a double change deciding to hold them back for a late charge.

Whatever the ultimate merits in the move the immediate result was that all the pressure was taken off Gloucestershire and their batsman began to flourish particularly againsnt Kane whose opening 3 overs yielded 21 runs.

As Sadiq Mohammed and Andy Stovold each coasted to half centuries the unhurried movement of their stroke production greatly impressed. There was also a valuable contribution from rugby international Alastair Hignell before Philip Banbridge made a decisive difference between a modest and good total by clubbing 61 no in 69 mins off only 58 balls. At 246 for 8 Gloucestershire breathed freely again.

When the going got roughest the Irish bowler to suffer the most was the unfortunate Kane. He had 76 runs plundered off 12 overs – and had not the consolation of even a single wicket. When he did find was the outside edge of Hignell's bat, Warke dropped a very difficult catch at third man. It was just not his day.

Ireland and the Benson & Hedges

In the two years that they have played in the Bensons and Hedges competition, Ireland have not won any of their games and in honesty, they have not come close to victory. So why do they play in the competition?

Alan Lewis, a veteran with over 90 caps and captain of the side since 1994, explains "Well, there are financial benefits for the Irish Cricket Union arising out of participation, however, from a playing point of view, it is really the exposure to better cricketers in a competitive environment that is the great plus we get from the games". While Ireland have not won games, according to Lewis, the current Irish regime are taking a pragmatic view and are first seeking to get closer to the professional's standard.

In general, it is true that in such games, the full time players have been able to cruise to victory. To change this situation takes time and it is unrealistic to expect things to change overnight. "To begin with, what we want to achieve is a more consistent level of performance and let the professionals know that they are going to get a game from us". It follows that the next stage is to get a positions where winning is a possibility and while Lewis is at pains to point out that the side still goes out onto the field with the aim of victory, it is refreshing to hear such realism creeping into Irish cricket.

So where do the Irish stand at the present time. Interestingly, Lewis feels that the bowling attack is the healthiest aspect of their game. "Our bowling has always been pretty good, we've never been asked to chase huge scores". The area he feels in need of greatest improvement is the batting. Regular Irish supports will agree with this summation, after all, how many games have petered out after the professionals have batted and then reduced Ireland to 20 for 3. The interest goes and the bar tents fill.

In his capacity as National Coach, Mike Hendrick, has been central to the changes taking place in Irish cricket. Described by Lewis as a "total professional, who eats, sleeps and drinks cricket, and has done so since he was 16", Hendrick is seeking to transform the Irish team into a disciplined force. The squad has been netting in Belfast every weekend since January, but these are no ordinary practice sessions. Bowlers must record details of every delivery and while basics are not ignored, Hendrick is seeking to cultivate the modern arts of one day cricket. Lewis emphasises that batsmen are encouraged to play "courageous shots". Much is being asked of Irish cricketers, but it is arguable if they have ever been better prepared.

The Irish season does not end with the Bensons and Hedges, of course. There will be further competitive action against county opposition in the Nat West Trophy, before amateur equivalents from England, Scotland and Wales provide the opposition in the Triple Crown series. An interesting addition to the fixture list is a European Cup competition to be held in Denmark later this year. But while all of these games will be important in their own right, the focus will be on the ICC Tournament in March 1997 which is taking place in Malaysia. Lessons learned from the last tournament in Kenya are being put into practice already Mike Hendrick has visited Malaysia to find out what the squad can expect. The top three in this competition qualify for the World Cup proper and anyone who watched the recent Cup can not have failed to have been impressed with the ICC qualifiers, Kenya, UAE and Holland. While the Kenyan's victory over the West Indies was one of the many highlights of the month long cricket, all of the ICC teams can take pride from their contribution to the success of the tournament.

Can Ireland qualify for the World Cup? Certainly, it will not be easy, however, the opportunity now exists for Ireland to test themselves against top opposition and gauge their progress against the high standards of professionals. Today, is such an opportunity and it will be interesting to chart the side's progression during the long season ahead.

INDIVIDUAL MANAGED PENSION FUNDS FIVE YEAR PERFORMANCE %

Source: Micropal. All figures and copy above and below relate to individual pension mixed and aggressively managed sectors. Returns based on offer/offer performance from 1/1/91 - 1/1/96 and do not relate to premiums paid into a policy. Unit values may be expected to fall as well as rise. Past performance is not always an indication of future returns.

If you're choosing a pension, there's just one thing to remember. All pensions are not the same. Because the better your pension fund performs, the more comfortable your retirement will be.

At Eagle Star, we try very hard to get the best returns possible for our pensions customers.

And, to date, our endeavours have been paying off - handsomely. Out of all the unit-linked individual managed pension funds available, the three best performers for the last 5 years are all Eagle Star funds. What's more, Eagle Star's third best performing fund beat the best of the rest by 70 percentage points.

All of which should make choosing a pension fund that little bit easier. After all, where your future is concerned, why settle for fourth or fifth best?

Club News

Today's game is an appropriate time to welcome our new groundsman – Karl McDermott. While Karl has worked on the ground for the past five years and has been involved in the preparations for the visits of Middlesex, Australia and the West Indies, this is the first season that he has been the Number 1. He will be the first to acknowledge the debt the club owes to his predecessor, Podge Hughes. It was Podge's time and dedication that made Clontarf the premier ground in the country and we are confident that Karl will continue the good work and maintain that position.

If you have been to nets yet (if not, why not) then take a stroll around the ground and notice the work that has been carried out to the practice area. The revamping has been the "baby" of Gerry Murphy. Gerry enlisted the help of Frank Cavanagh and together they planned and created the improved facility. This involved the extension and enclosing of the third net, renetting the entire area and a general clean-up. The transformation has been remarkable. This work could not have been carried out without an army of volunteer help – so take a bow Brian Bergin, Alan Cavanagh, David Cavanagh, Robert Ellis, Walter McConnell, David McGeehan, Ronan McGeehan, Paul McManus, Declan Mullins, Ronan Murphy, Peter Murphy, Mario O'Kelly, Peter Prendergast, Tom Prior, Michael Ryan Jr., Paul Ryan and Deryck Vincent.

The Club wishes too make a collection of memorabilia with a view to creating a permanent display in the clubhouse. We are seeking photographs, cuttings, fixture cards, in short anything connected to the club or cricket in general.

If you wish to donate any items, please contact Dermot Gunn, Deryck Vincent or any member of the committee.

Clontarf Ladies Cricket Club

The first Ladies Cricket Match was played in 1940 and in 1941 the Leinster Ladies Cricket League was formed. The first Clontarf Ladies Team entered the league at that time and was successful in the competition in 1942, under the captaincy of Miss F. Feeney an auspicious start to the fortunes of the Ladies Club, which continued to flourish for the next twenty years. During this time the club had the services of one of the greatest all-rounders to grace the Irish ladies cricket scene – Marie Coffey.

Unfortunately, ladies cricket fizzled out in the 1960s and didn't resume until 1975. Since then, the Ladies Club has gone from strength to strength winning its first trophy of the modern era – The Tyler Cup in 1977. The club has won a senior trophy every year since and has frequently swept the board winning all three senior trophies. We have also been the proud possessors of some Division II and III silverware over the years.

The strength of a successful club is usually in its depth and we have maintained our position as the largest club in Leinster for many years. There has always been great competition for places on the various teams, particularly on the 1st XI although it remained virtually unchanged for 10 years. We are greatly indebted to Podge Hughes who was our coach and mentor for the club's most successful years. His fielding practises were legendary and could bring tears to the eyes of even the most hardened competitors. However, all the hard work paid off as we frequently had five Clontarf players as regulars on the Irish side, with others on the panel. At one stage the North Leinster team was made up almost exclusively of Clontarf players. In recent years the faces on the 1st XI have changed but some of the stalwarts still remain!

Phyllis Spence set up a school girls section which has insured that a steady supply of new blood, eager to compete at club level, would be available. The L.W.C.U. set up girls leagues to encourage new talent and these are proving very successful judging by the youthful faces on many senior sides. We have had Clontarf representatives on the North Leinster U-19 and U-15 inter provincial sides since their inception.

We look forward to having many more club members on representative sides in future years.

Opportunity knocks...

...with Homestar 50. It offers a modern, cost effective home and contents insurance package that cuts down on the paperwork.

Homestar 50 automatically covers the contents of your home for up to fifty percent of the buildings sum insured.

You can even pay your premiums by instalments - you can't 'knock' that.

Why not contact your broker about Homestar 50?
